FOR CLERK OF COURT OF APPEALS,

R. R. BOLLING,

OF FRANKLIN COUNTY.

Decision Upon the Proposition to Call a Convention of the Caucus of the Conservative Democratic Members of the Legislature, Held in Frankfort February 6th, 1866.

[For the Louisville Democrat.]

AT A meeting of the Conservative Democratic members of the Legislature, held at the hall of the House of Representatives, on the 6th of February, 1866, on motion of W. R. Bradley, Esq., Representative from Hickman and Fulton, it was

Resolved, THAT IN OUR JUDGMENT THERE IS NOW NO NECESSITY FOR A CALL OF A CONVENTION OF THE PARTY, AND WE WOULD RESPECTFULLY URGE THE PARTY NOT TO CALL A CONVENTION, WHEN NO NECESSITY EXISTS FOR THE SAME.

J. B. BRUNER, Chairman.

D. ROBB,
JAS. A. DAWSON, } Secretaries.

The above expresses the opinion of the Conservative members of the Legislature, by whom the matter was discussed fully, and to whom interested and other parties presented every reason to induce them to recommend a call. We hold that the judgment of this caucus is correct; that any effort to call a convention will tend to disintegrate and break up the party.

The vote in the caucus stood upon the motion of Mr. Bradley, fifty-six against a convention and nineteen for it.

☞ No one can read the debates in Congress without the painful impression that there is in the way of a Union of these States something more than armies. These Radicals distrust and hate the South with a most heartfelt abhorrence. They hate even a South wind, and would abolish the equator if it was in their power. They have a deep affection for only one object South, and that is the negro, and they will hate him as soon as they find he will not vote for them.

They feel a nervous apprehension that the South may get into Congress, and then the loaves and fishes will be snatched from their grasp. Now and then they falsely profess that they do not hate the South; but their simulation in that is too manifest to any one. They are afraid of the South, as Falstaff was of the dead Percy, with this difference to add to their apprehensive abhorrence: they fear she is not dead, and they want to kill her again. The safety of the country is the cry; but it's their own safety they mean. It must be confessed that this feeling of animosity is returned with interest in the South. Everything North is hated. The north star is scarcely respectable. There are no public acts South; there is no opportunity for them; but when we say the feeling is unfriendly with the masses, we use a mild term.

Now, we should like to know how people, cherishing this mutual distrust and hate, are to live in the same Government in peace, and when is it to get any better. Is this Rump Congress to make any improvement? Its whole legislation is built on distrust and hate. It is fertile in measures to protect itself from the people of one section of the Union, and every one of them increases the difficulty, and will create a necessity for more securities.

There sits one body, from which twenty-two members are excluded, because the majority are afraid they can't be secure if the twenty-two are admitted. Sometimes nineteen or twenty men pass important bills in a body that contains, constitutionally, seventy-two members. They are passing Constitutional amendments, that ought to require forty-eight votes, with little over thirty, and even less if a few members are unavoidably absent.

Then there is another body, which ought to contain 242 members, pegging away with 194; passing Constitutional amendments requiring two-thirds with 127 votes. All to cripple the power they imagine, the terrible effect, of the excluded States, and they expect millions of people to submit to their laws and pay taxes. If, after this, the people South are not unfriendly to the Government, it is not for lack of means to make them so. They would be a singular people, if they didn't hate such rule.

These Radicals babble Union, and have the audacity to call themselves the Union party; yet they are daily and industriously aiding the hostile feeling of the South, and nullifying all the efforts of Union men.

If these men represent the feeling and temper of the North, a final dissolution of the Union is only a question of time. To think of holding the South by force is an idle dream. The North can't afford it. It is a long and expensive business that will try any people.

We still trust that there are men enough in both sections, of different temper and spirit, who will yet smother these extremes and save the Great Republic from the consequences of the irrepressible conflict.

☞ In another column we publish a very remarkable article from the Cincinnati Commercial, giving a secret history of the entrance of Mr. Stanton into the Cabinet, his intriguing with the leaders of the Radicals, and their faithlessness, the schemes of the Republican party, and what they perilled for the Presidency, with other things worth reading. The reader will have to recall the perilous condition of the country when those shameful and treasonable plottings were going on. The idea of bargaining between an influential officer of the government and a Congressional committee, whereby the good of the country is made secondary to the designs of politicians, seems too shocking. Yet the Commercial, a Republican paper, but one of independence, states that such a bargain was made, and implies, by a question, that McClellan's army was divided up in order to produce its defeat, and thereby the ruin of his prospects for the Presidency.

Read what this bargain produced. The seven days' battle, the falling back from Richmond, Pope's overwhelming defeat, Lee's first invasion. It accounts for more. McClellan very neatly defeated the bargain by his victory at Antietam. The country has frequently wondered why, after such a battle, he was so soon superseded. This explains it. Had he remained in command he would inevitably have been made President. The bargain demanded his head, and off it came. A series of bloody defeats to the Union armies followed, with a two years' prolongation of the war. Could a more atrocious picture of the spirit of Radicalism be presented? To think of the precious lives lost, the suffering entailed upon the country by these political bargainers, that this or that one might be President. History does not present such an atrocious and damning spectacle. We publish the article entire. Read it.

☞ We hope that a large flock of geese, with well-oiled pen feathers, are kept on the Potomac. We foresee great use for them immediately. A dispatch the other day said:

The steamship Agnes, from St. Thomas on the 24 instant, arrived here yesterday. The only news of importance is that the French steamer Styx left St. Thomas on the 1st instant, with 1,200 French troops for Vera Cruz.

The mild but not worn from the pen with which Mr. Seward announced to us that the French were going to withdraw from Mexico. We have congratulated ourselves on it, and not a little plumed ourselves—with goose quills, as it turned out—upon the diplomacy that expelled the French from Mexico without arms. It seems to be a mistake. At least this doesn't look like withdrawing.

It is fortunate, however, that the matter rests with our Secretary of State. It is but furnishing him with new occasions for triumph, and us with new causes of glory. We are just as confident now as if the thing was done, that these men of muskets, and the despotic French Emperor, have only again given an opportunity to Mr. Seward to win ripe laurels. Indeed, looking at the past, we wonder that Napoleon should have the courage, the rashness, to venture again into regions where our Secretary has but to use the white feather of his keen pen to drive him ignominiously away, as he has often done. Indeed, Napoleon just reverses the complaint of Wamba in Ivanhoe. That hero, of the wooden sword and shield of Brawn, said the tenties with the Saracens were making an old man of him. There had been three of them, each to last fifty years, within his recollection. So Napoleon has been leaving Mexico immediately, any time within five years, according to our worthy Secretary. As he is there yet, time must have stood still, and will continue to stand still until he does go, thus happily preventing our growing older. Unluckily Wamba' fortunately transcendent secretary! Some are agitated over this. We are not. Our firm nerves don't tremble. We know that in a few months, perhaps a year, a luminous and voluminous correspondence will be published announcing that the French are going again: "Maximilian has packed his trunk," &c., and we will be charmed with feats of noble diplomacy.

These successes are particularly grateful to a nation like ours, that has had quite enough of sanguinary victories to do for a time. We like to win, and when it can be done without expense, as in this case, it is particularly grateful. To see our great diplomatist clutching with skillful fingers the feather part of his pen, and splattering with ink the astonished Frenchman until he exclaims, "Mon Dieu! est ce que tout l'Amerique est negre" is great. He will shout at the blackening he gets, and rejoice over it as a Black Republican triumph. He will glory in it as a consequence of the war. Well, but may be after the shouting is over we will find that the French are not gone after all; that the ships that were to take them over didn't do it. On the contrary, they brought more to this side. Well, what of it? Won't we have had our triumph all the same? Can't we have it again? It the French like to be ignominiously expelled once a month by our Secretary, and if Maximilian intends to devote his whole time to his wardrobe by packing it up, what do we care? Ours is the glory; theirs the mortification. Even Blackwood's Magazine, by Cornelius O'Dowd, applauded our last feat, and what more can we expect? Blackwood is the great tory periodical of England.

One exchange accounts for it by saying that although some are brought over others are to be taken back. This is something like the silly puzzle of the man who had to carry a fox and goose and bushel of corn over a river in a boat that would hold but two of them, with the difference that if Napoleon takes any French soldiers back to France any sooner than he wants to, the goose is on his side of the water. If he does not, then Mr. Seward still has the bird on our side to pluck diplomatic quills from.

There are a great many who think the whole Mexican question is at present a silly puzzle of one kind or another. We are in a nice condition to say that the Mexican people shall be free to choose their own rulers and quarrel with France on the point, when we don't allow one-fourth of our own country to choose rulers. We had better wait till the Southern representatives are admitted to seats in Congress before we say much on that subject. We have one large elephant to feed already; pray, don't let's get a menagerie of them. In the meanwhile we bid our Secretary to go on in the skillful exercise of his ingenious pen. Give us another nine hundred pages of foreign correspondence next year, and if he gain any paper advantages let us laugh and cheer our man. If he get empty promises only, it is a fair quid pro quo for empty threats given on our part. It is a fair trade all around, and the fun is perfectly harmless.

☞ It is now uncertain if the health of Jeff. Davis will endure the confinement to which he is subjected. This will not change the question of the right or wrong of his long imprisonment; but it will be an aggravation of the case, that will have a worse effect upon the feeling of the country than the legal question involved. Has he not a right to a release, or to a speedy and impartial trial? Is it not the duty of every officer of every department of the Government, from the President down, to grant him that? What is a written Constitution sworn to good for, if it will not shelter a man from perpetual imprisonment, notwithstanding the strongest terms that can be used?

Davis is no more responsible than thousands of others for the rebellion, and not half as much as some; but it he were, he is entitled to a trial, speedy and impartial, or a release.

Such crazy fanatics or demagogues as Nye talk of hanging him, and want five or six hung; but other people are satisfied that no one will be hung for treason. It is too late for that now. Some would connect Davis with the cruelty to the Andersonville prisoners or the assassination of Abraham Lincoln; but the man who believes such charges on the frivolous grounds alleged, ought himself to be suspected and watched, and never trusted with any position that would give him power over men.

We protest against this perpetual confinement of a man for any crime, as forbidden by the Constitution, which all are bound to support. It is in the power of the President to release him, if he is not immediately tried; and it is his duty to do it, no matter what the consequences are. What respect can a Government expect to retain, if it violates daily a plain provision of the Constitution?

☞ According to the programme now, the States South are not to be admitted into the Union until they ratify the Constitutional amendment about to be passed. Any Southern State that will ratify it, is unit to be a State of any free government. We can't guess, however, what these States may seem to do. They were mighty in doing wrong themselves, and docile in submitting to the palpable wrongs of others.

☞ A Rev. Bliss preached a sermon in Memphis lately, of the Radical stripe, about the riots there. Trusting in God, he exclaimed, we need not fear. The fanatic had better be sure he is right first, before he puts his trust there. Better not insult Divine Providence, by trusting that He will help one in the wrong.

☞ George Ward, the oldest Odd-Fellow in the world, died recently at Preston, England. He was born in 1780, and joined the order of Odd Fellows. He was one of those who signed the first "dispensation" which came to America.

LETTER FROM LEXINGTON.

The Races.

Correspondence of the Louisville Democrat.

LEXINGTON, KY., May 15, 1866.

Messrs. Editors: The time-honored course of the Lexington Racing Association, so well known to every lover of the turf in every part of the United States, and over whose beautiful track some of the most celebrated names known to the turf gained their first and greatest honors and achieved their most brilliant triumphs, wore to-day the festive appearance it was ever wont to assume in the merry month of May in the good old days of yore. The unfinished earthwork that frowns its sullen front immediately on the outside of the track brought back to many vivid recollections of our late terrible struggle, and made us, from the contrast, all the more eager and thankful to enjoy the exhilerating sports of peace.

We have in times past seen larger assemblages, when perhaps greater interest was felt in the contests offered elsewhere, and the frequency of turf meetings throughout the country, the assemblage was large, both in point of numbers and respectability, and certainly in what sporting men consider a far greater desideratum, the number of horses started. The colts entered in both races represented, as will be seen from the summary, some of the most noted breeds known on this side of the Atlantic.

The weather was all that could have been desired—perfectly clear, and much warmer than it has been for some time past—while the course was in fine order, in the pools sold at the Phœnix and on the course for the first race, Alexander's entry was the favorite, with odds for first choice. The pools were not generally large, but compared well with those of former years. Colin Affriend, of Louisville, the popular auctioneer, who had secured the privilege of selling pools on the course, made the deep shades of the beautiful cooling ground resound with the sweet strains of soft and sylph-like laughter. The push for the bonus needed, which was nobly contested between Alexander's and West's entries, in the second heat, was a most exciting contest, and spoke well for the qualities of a thorough clipper possessed by West's entry, which colt was received by cheers of applause from his admirers. The following is a summary of the races:

The following is a summary of the races:

[illegible] mile heats for colts and fillies 2 years old the property of [illegible] Lexington Course. Closed with nine subscribers.

Time—1:49, 1:49.

The second race was by far the most interesting, being composed of stock equally famous, and with seven starting. After several false starts they got off in fine Anglish style, Clay's entry being at all times the favorite; the winner selling for scarcely a respectable amount in the pools. The result of the race will be found appended immensely. The summary is as follows:

second race; mile heats; purse $1; free for all ages.

Dead Body Found—A Mystery—Candidates in Bullitt County—The Crops, &c.

Correspondence of the Louisville Democrat.

URE, JEFFERSON COUNTY, KY., } May 15, 1866.

Messrs. Editors: The monotony of this community was broken a few days since by the discovery of the body of a man at the mouth of Brier creek, one mile from the Salt-river turnpike. The matter seems to be wrapped in mystery. The Coroner's jury was unable to arrive at a correct conclusion, as the body was in a great state of putrification. The body was lying upon its back, divested of all clothing except two shirts—one woolen and the other cotton. Near the body was an old woolen hat, much worn, and a pair of good shoes. Within a foot or two of the body there was a half-inch rope several feet in length, carefully coiled. The deceased was about five feet three, was found a pair of black woolen pants, much worn and patched, with the legs ripped open nearly all the way of the outside seams, and lining torn out, rolled up, and laid by the ground; the pants rolled up and laid upon this, and a pair of old woolen socks laid upon the pants. Question—How came the body there? Was it murder? Was the poor man was laboring under some mental aberration and wandered from the pike and froze to death, as the pants were seen as early as the middle of February?

Well, I have just returned from to and "beyond" that "elmaic" stream, Salt river, to which it is said so many defeated candidates have gone in other days to juvenate their drooping spirits, and I am inclined to the opinion that many of the aspirants for office in Bullitt county will go to this stream, or some other point, the first week in August, for I have heard as many office-seekers in one little county.

THE CROPS.

The peaches are all killed, or nearly so. The apples are not plenty. The wheat crop is almost an entire failure. The prospect for a good hay crop is good. The corn, though young, is promising.

C. Y. B.

THE NEW INTERNAL REVENUE BILL. By the new internal revenue bill now under consideration in the House of Representatives, important reductions of tax are made upon many articles. The estimated amounts of tax reduced upon the principal articles are as follows: Boots and shoes, $4,000,000; clothing, $11,300,000; ship building, $500,000; income exemption below $1,000, $3,000,000; reduction of the income tax from 10 per cent. to 5 per cent. on sums over $10,000, $47,000,000; metals, $8,327,000; coal, $1,250,000; paper and book binding and books, $2,072,000; agricultural implements, $1,500,000; petroleum, $2,100,000; repairs, $730,000; vegetable, mineral and fish oils, $2,000,000; slaughtered animals, $1,250,000; pianos, watches, plate, carriages, etc., $1,350,000; freights, $1,750,000; tobacco, $500,000; manufactured articles, $12,000,000. The entire amount of tax reduced on the above and other articles is estimated at $75,000,000.

THE ADAMS EXPRESS ROBBERY.—It appears from late developments that the idea of the robbery of the Adams Express car, on the New York and New Haven railroad, last January, originated with a brakesman on the railroad, and that seven persons were engaged in it. The brakesman saw that the Express agent was in the habit of sleeping in the cars. The amount of money in the safes on the train was $95,000, and was at the mercy of the thieves, but they only took off $180,000, in gold and currency. Nearly all this money has been found hidden in a house in New York, and also in the country around Stamford, Conn., concealed in barrels, under stone walls, &c. All the thieves have been captured. It appears, too, that the New York policemen knew immediately who committed the robbery, yet the thieves were not arrested by them.

COOLNESS.—The Boston ice companies, having recently consolidated into one corporation, and thus secured the monopoly of the market, have raised the price of ice to an exhorbitant figure. So excited are the Bostonians, that they are discussing the project of forming a company to go to sea in search of floating icebergs, and tow them into Boston harbor. To make the enterprise pay the better, pleasure parties are to be taken out on each trip.

☞ Hon. George E. Badger, an eminent Old-line Whig in former days, from North Carolina, is dead. He was Secretary of the Navy under General Harrison, and was subsequently United States Senator.

ITEMS.

—One death from cholera occurred on the hospital ship Falcon, New York.

—Brig. General D. H. Cooper, of Arkansas, has been pardoned by the President.

—The receipts from customs at the four principal ports of the United States, in the week ending May 5, were as follows: New York, $2,253,609; Boston, $289,151 35; Philadelphia, $103,559 18; Baltimore, $80,-209 21. Total receipts, $2,707,577 05.

—Mr. Romero, the Mexican Minister at Washington, has furnished Mr. Seward with another installment of documents, showing up the barbarous policy of the Imperialists in Mexico, and charging them with the assassination of Maj. Gen. Arteaga.

—Four stores on Broad street, in Bangor, Me., were destroyed by fire on Sunday. The loss is estimated at $25,000 or $30,000.

—The new excise law was generally enforced in New York on Sunday, and nearly all the liquor saloons proper were kept hermetically closed.

—The works of the Marine Dock Company and the steamer Jeannie Deans were destroyed by fire in St. Louis on Saturday night. It was the work of an incendiary. Loss $150,000.

—Mr. Henry A. Smythe, the new collector for the port of New York, has filed his bonds with the Government, and will enter at once upon the discharge of his duties.

—The crops in this part of the country, although much injured by late rains, are still promising.—[Verona (Miss.) Times, 3d inst.

—The Tulare (California) Times says that J. H. Kincaid, living on Upper Kings river, will have one hundred acres of cotton this year. The Los Angelos News announces the arrival of a thousand pounds of the same article from Utah.

—The prospect for fine crops in Attala county was never better than now. True, we have had a little too much rain, but that has done us no material injury as yet. Our citizens have seized wisely in planting plenty of grain. There will be more cotton produced in Attala county this year than during any previous year, provided we get a good stand, and the ides of January, 1867, will find our people in a prosperous condition considering everything.—National (Miss.) Star.

—The Mississippi is so high at Quincy that emigrants are unable to cross the bottoms on the opposite side of the river, on account of their overflow. Steamboats have been carrying parties desiring to get westward to Lagrange, where terra firma is found for travelers.

—A doctor up town has recently given the following prescription for a lady: "A new bonnet, a cashmere shawl, and a new pair of gaiter boots." The lady, it is needless to say, has entirely recovered. [Exchange.

—The Japanese engineer connected with the Iron-clad built in America for the Tycoon, believing himself dishonored by reflections cast on the vessel, committed suicide by "harl kari," having obtained permission to do so from the Tycoon.

—A certificate of incorporation has been filed in San Francisco for the Pacific Rolling Mill Company. Capital $1,000,000.

—The Lebanon (Tenn.) Herald, of the 5th inst., says:

We are informed, during a visit to Rome last Wednesday, that the wheat crop in Smith county will be at least one-half; that the prospect for corn is excellent, and that there will be no end to fruit.

—The largest amount of revenue drawn from the British people in one year never exceeded $870,000,000, while the amount drawn the present year from the people of the United States is at the rate of $540,-000,000 per annum.

—The ladies of Hardeman county, Tennessee, are going to erect a monument to the memory of the Confederate dead in that county.

—The original revenue bill and substitute was defeated in the Tennessee Senate on Saturday, by one vote.

—The levee laborers at St. Louis struck for higher wages on Monday last. The steamboatmen acceded to their demands.

—The successful design for the Gettysburg monument is by Mr. Batterson, of Hartford, Connecticut, to whom the contract for its construction has been awarded.

—The Chesapeake Female College, situated near Fortress Monroe, is to be converted into a Theological Seminary for negro aspirants after ministerial honors, under the patronage of the Northern Baptist Home Missionary Society.

—The trial of skill between the telegraph operators of the New England States and New York come off on Wednesday night. The prize, a gold telegraph key, was awarded to Mr. Kettles, of Fall River, Mass., he sending 250 words per minute and receiving 240 words, and therefore was declared the victor.

—The Commissioner of Agriculture has just received from the Royal Experimental Agricultural Society, of Gratz, Austria, a large variety of seeds and cereals, to be used for experimental purposes in the grounds of the department.

—Mr. French, the Superintendent of the San Antonio (Texas) and Mexican Gulf railroad, was set upon and badly beaten and robbed, near Lagrange, by a gang of negroes, because he ordered them to desist smoking in the cars.

—Five hundred dollars in gold was paid recently in San Francisco for the choice of a name for the new steamship the Edwin Forrest in that city.

—The wet season has set in throughout Northern Alabama. Work on plantations is certainly stopped, and cotton crop not yet all planted.

—The body of Preston King, late Collector at New York, who committed suicide some months since, has been discovered floating in the water near New York.

—Mr. J. H. Baker, while at work in his saw-mill, near Celina, Ohio, fell against the circular saw and was cut in two WANTED—AGENTS—To canvass for the Standard History of the War, now complete in one large volume of over 1100 pages, splendidly illustrated with 50 steel portraits of Generals, Battle Scenes, Maps and Diagrams. It is the production of many of the ablest writers, the author has confined himself strictly to official data derived from the reports of Northern and southern Generals, the report of the Committee on the Conduct of the War, and the Annual Reports of the Secretary of War and Navy. Also, a complete and accurate history of the Assassination and Trial of the conspirators. We have carefully avoided the introduction of any matter not strictly reliable and impartial and shall confine to the publication of what is universally demanded, a fair and impartial History of the war. The great superiority of this work over all others for every where acknowledged. It is marked by a degree of thoroughness and accuracy attempted by no competitor. Disabled officers and soldiers, teachers, students, young men, and all in want of profitable employment, should send at once for circulars and see why it sells faster and gives better satisfaction than any other book published. YESTERDAY'S NOON DISPATCHES.

FROM NEW YORK.

The President's Reception—The Memphis Riots—Government Advertising—Points in the Veto of the Colorado Bill—Const Defenses.

NEW YORK, May 16.

The steamer Java, with the day's later news, is coming up the bay.

The Herald's special says of the President's reception in Washington: Taken all in all, this was one of the most satisfactory receptions of the season, and the people and representatives of more distant States became personally familiar in any similar occasion. Even the Radicals in large numbers paid their respects to the President, who received them in a manner becoming his position.

Mr. Brown submitted a motion to reconsider the vote rejecting a resolution allowing the Mayor to advertise for bids for removing the Market House. Fourth street, which was carried, and the resolution was referred to the Wharf Committee.

Mr. McClaran submitted a motion to reconsider the vote rejecting a resolution prescribing the manner of P. & M. Pfeiffer, for the improvement of the wharf and North street, which was carried, and the resolution was then adopted.

Mr. McClaran introduced a resolution instructing the Mayor to advertise for bids for removing the wharf, from First to Fourth street, which was adopted.

Mr. Brown submitted a resolution from the Chamber Council providing for dippers at the public pumps, with an amendment, which was adopted as amended.

Mr. Maxwell introduced a preamble and resolution relating to the Medical University, which was adopted, and Messrs. Maxwell and Carroll were appointed a committee to carry out the objects of the resolution.

Mr. Brown, from the Street Committee, Western District, reported a resolution granting C. Murphy, contractor, time until July 1, 1866, to complete Market street, Portland, from Grove to Ferry, grade. The Board concurred in the first the present terms of representation is a representative for a hundred and twenty-five thousand population, and a Senator for every two representative districts. He adds that this scale would cause representation for the majority, while New York, with a population of 3,000,000, only has thirty-three. He also speaks of the inequality in seven other States of the Union, which are grossly misrepresented, which are over-represented, which are correct, and which are under-represented. The latter are the only ones to be made fair by the proposed change. The Tribune says the Senate will not consider the amendment, and the House will not insist upon it, and the bill will pass as it is.

The World's special says the Board of Engineer officers from the army and navy, who have been in session for some weeks, have made a report to Congress on the coast defenses, with the accompanying maps and plans. The report is very voluminous, and occupies a number of columns of the World. It recommends the construction of fifty-six fortifications, and the defenses of the Delaware river will be sustained and built up
